ST. PAUL, Aug. 7.—[Special.]—The Chicago and Northwestern Railway Company is about completing its branch to Aberdeen, Dak., and will soon be running trains to that point. The road is now built to Watertown, and from there to Aberdeen the grading is finished, the bridges are in place, and the track is laid for a distance of about twenty miles. The remaining distance will be completed in a few weeks. The road runs through a country which is filling up with settlers very rapidly, and the business which it will do will be very large. Aberdeen is the county-seat of Brown County, and is the largest town in Northwestern Dakota. It is situated on the James River, and is the center of a large agricultural district. It is the point at which the Aberdeen, Bismarck & Northwestern Railroad will cross the James River, and it is the point at which the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway will build its line to the Black Hills. Aberdeen is, therefore, a place of considerable importance, and it is growing very rapidly. Its population is now about 1,500, and it has a number of fine brick business blocks and a large number of handsome residences. Its streets are wide and well laid out, and it has a system of water-works which is now being put in operation. Its people are wide-awake and enterprising, and they have every reason to be proud of their town. Aberdeen is the center of a large and fertile agricultural district, and it is destined to be a large city. It is the county-seat of Brown County, which is one of the largest counties in the Territory. It contains about 1,200 square miles, and has a population of about 10,000. The county is well settled, and the people are prosperous and contented. The county is well supplied with schools and churches, and the people are well educated and refined. The county is well supplied with railroads, and the people are well connected with the outside world. The county is well supplied with water, and the people are well supplied with food. The county is well supplied with fuel, and the people are well supplied with clothing. The county is well supplied with everything that is necessary to make life comfortable and happy. The people are industrious, and they are making the most of their opportunities. They are building up a great city, and they are laying the foundation for a great state. They are doing a work which will be remembered by generations to come, and they are doing it well.

The Gilbert Association Problem the Last Issue—General Rail Rates.

[SPECIAL DISPATCH.]—The Present Tripartite Contract Broken and the Original Agreement to Be Restored.

The effort of the managers of the Western passenger associations recently announced, and to-day put into operation, to restore the Trunk Line rates, which were demoralized by the cut rates established by the Grand Trunk and Canadian Pacific roads, has not been successful. When Mr. Albee arrived here last Sunday he was confident that the differences would be settled by Monday at the latest, but during the week he has been unable to get the roads to agree on any basis. It is the general opinion that the arrangement would have been agreed to and in force by the first of the month, according to the announcement that is just handed to reporters by Commissioner Midgley, but the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul road refused to subscribe to the agreement unless it was signed by the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific road, the Wabash road, and the Grand Trunk line. The Rock Island & Pacific road has the Western Trunk Line association, and nothing in connection with that agreement binds that road in any way. The Wabash road is not a member of the Western Trunk Line association, but is a member of the Central Traffic association, and has been for some time past. The Grand Trunk road is a member of the Canadian Pacific road is a member of the Canadian Trunk Line association, and nothing in connection with that agreement binds that road in any way. The Wabash road is not a member of the Western Trunk Line association, but is a member of the Central Traffic association, and has been for some time past. The Grand Trunk

THE SCAVENGER SERVICE.

It Is Good Enough to Suit the Health Commissioner, with Some Exceptions.

The Reason Why Householders Can't Have Their Garbage Removed —Dubious Ruskit.

A Look of Tone on the Part of City Officials—Dr. Wolf's Holiday Resolve.

The sanitary Garbage Inspectors employed by the city report at the office of the Board of Health every afternoon at 4 o'clock, and when they have answered to their names and received orders for the day's work, a clerk hands them the complaints that have been entered during the previous twenty-four hours. There is usually a half basket of these complaints, and few of persons in the scavenger service—a pretty good indication that that service is very inefficient. But the inspectors have no control of that fact. The superintendent of the garbage service is responsible for that. The inspectors have only to serve the notice and get the names, with such a large mass of the complaints unfounded. Dr. Wolf ought to give better consideration to the complaints that he finds.

[illegible] a clock case.

The service is with the system, which makes a great deal of misery, and doesn't secure the improvement. Instead of having the work done by contractors at so much a year, and having them responsible for such shortcomings as now appear in the service, the Health Commissioner employs men by the day to do the work. The Sanitary Inspectors are employed to see that they do what they are paid for, but when one man has to work over the territory of a dozen men to see that they do their work, he cannot be in a dozen places at once. Their report to the Commissioner is based on the garbage complaints, and if the owner of a flat, and he only, complains that the scavengers have failed to call, the Inspector has to take the scavenger's word for it, or else report that the complaint is unfounded. Under the present system the Inspectors have no time to look after the complaints of the tenants, or others, in addition to the complaints entered at the office. Besides, the Inspectors are employed by the day, and have no interest in the work, and are not expected to do more than they are paid for. IN GENERAL.

Over 700 gallons of a solution of sulphate of iron were put into sewers in the Sixth Ward by the Health Department yesterday.

Robert McDonald, who lives on Elsdon's grocer, corner Union, was fined $50 by Justice Morgan for violating the building ordinance.

Emily Walsh, charged by Jacob Cohn, keeper of the Sherman House prison, with stealing her wearing apparel, was held to the Criminal Court by Justice Summers in $1,000 bonds.

The city has bought of Frederick A. Stange for $750 a small triangular piece of ground at the head, on the river side, of Kinzie and Ogden streets. Heretofore users of that land have had to pay the privilege of swinging the bridge over their property.

The driver of Robinson, the stone man on Lake street, encountered unfortunately Inspector Stewart yesterday while he was driving a load of merchandise on the corner of Monroe and Wells streets. He was arrested, and his team was confiscated pending action.

The temperature yesterday, as observed by Brauer, optician, No. 48 Madison street (Chicago Avenue Building), was as follows: 7 a. m., 67°; 9 a. m., 71°; 11 a. m., 80°; 1 p. m., 84°; 3 p. m., 87°; 5 p. m., 85°; 7 p. m., 81°; 9 p. m., 77°; 11 p. m., 71°.

There were 230 arrests and forty-one bail bonds signed yesterday, among the latter those of Mary Lee, who appears to be put in every week, and Jack Hurley, who has been bailed out for the same number of times. Of the prisoners arrested, 140 were discharged, the fine paid or bail forfeited.

An officer of the Thirty-fifth Street Station Thursday night observed Charles Anderson driving along with a horse and buggy answering to the description of a team stolen a short time before from Lincoln Park. Anderson was arrested and charged with larceny. Justice Summers continued the case.

Assistant Prosecutor Gaston Kohlsaat yesterday filed "An Act to" at the top of a column ruled in imitation of typewriting over the signature of the "relator," made to and before the attorney, and the answer of a legal search of such character, thereby showing there is nothing to prevent anybody playing them to practice upon.

Michael Kenna was arrested on the North Side with a package in his possession, containing a lot of loose diamonds valued at above $500, the said package he is said to have stolen from the large basket he is carrying at the Chicago avenue station, and Justice Summers continued the case for one week to give the owners time to properly look after the property. The police would like to find out who the property belongs to.

Mr. Haigh, the clerical agent of the Board Sanitary Commissioners, was placed Thursday night in the hottest cell-room in a charge of violating such of the Cruelty Act as forbids overloading animals. Haigh's horse, attached to a heavily-laden wagon, was driven by a boy, and Haigh was walking alongside. Justice Summers fined the offender $5 and costs, which, with the amount of bail, made a total of $15.

A committee of the Board of Management of St. Mary's Training School held a meeting at No. 150 North Market street yesterday afternoon to receive applications from persons wishing to secure a permanent home for several children of good character. Applications were received for but two children, and the committee, being unwilling to place children in homes of the class which haven't a chance in the world, adjourned.

Walter Chrisler.

It is safe to say that among the many American men who have shed lustre on the land of their nativity and helped to elevate the art to the honorable place it holds in the esteem of the American people few have occupied higher places in the public mind than Walter Chrisler. The subject under review is not a biography, but it enables the reader therefore into the most genial and companionable of the public and private life, of the artistic and personal Chrisler, of the artist and struggling student, of the artist in the zenith of his fame, as a great friend in many communities. The work is edited by artists, who are therefore, versed and appreciative of the artist's manner in his many trained feelings and skill in the production, known and unacknowledged the greatness of his work. The artistic work is made more interesting and by a selection of letters, each one dated, from the beginning of his career to the end of his life. These letters are exceptionally interesting, giving great insight into the character of the artist, and in addition to the many letters from a number of friends of the Chrisler, which include letters from the master to many lights and shades of artistic and literary.

In this higher the subject with having for a time, unfortunately, some of the many Bohemian habits of the time with more than a passing reference to the habits of the Bohemian life, in which he is more than a passing reference to the habits of the Bohemian life, in which he is more than a passing reference to the habits of the Bohemian life, in which he is

Grasses and Agriculture.

In the treatment of questions concerning the agricultural interest classes has nothing to be proud of. There is, indeed, much of which she should be particularly ashamed. Shamed as she has been with a deservingly severe exposition of fashionable folly, that work is not only possible but profits in other than material and subjective to the interests of other fields; strong as she has for several months been making addition to her laborious productiveness, she has made no effort to pay even a small part of her debt to agriculture. She has been also busy in endless wrangling and acute writing. Whose announces the effort to interest both the farmer that agriculture throughout has been freely used to make wise and helpful laws, to protect capital in other fields, to open new markets and to supply cash and public means of communication. Whose ever manufactures discover provision for any given, with variety a thought as to whether agriculture would suffer or not. But most agriculture has asked anything in return for all she has given who has been starved. It may suggested not as long ago that the agricultural magnates of the country should be represented in the councils of the Nation, but the idea was at once ridiculed as a scheme to gratify the political ambitions of the great transformers of agriculture, the small officials that interfered but ever have anything with, by giving him a place in the Cabinet. It is not difficult, however, to guess why industries that live upon agriculture should object to getting representatives of their interests and influences.

There are things, however, which ought to exist that would greatly benefit agriculture without in the least require legislation over them. Chemistry and it is to some extent the fault of the farmers themselves that there is not a chemist in every county in the land, ready almost daily and continuously to test the soil of farmers' fields, to tell them what it lacks and what it has in abundance, and how to get the best results from it. Such chemists would be worth their salaries many times over to the farmers, and they would be a great help to the agricultural colleges, which would find in them a ready means of giving practical instruction to students. Then there is the question of transportation. Why should not the railroads be required to carry agricultural products at a lower rate than manufactured goods?

WATER-SUPPLY OF DENVER.

Another Wife of the Town Finds—How the Supply is Obtained.

Denver City, July 21.—Denver, a city of 5,000 inhabitants, the foundations long since laid, and the finishing touches being put on the Cherry Creek bridge, which spans the Platte River two hundred feet wide, and is now about seven miles east of the Missouri, and the center of this city, was yesterday, amidst the rejoicing of their people, visited by the water-supply. The water was turned on at the Platte River bridge, and flowed through the pipes to the center of the city, and to the extremities of the town, in a full stream, and in a manner that showed the supply to be ample for all purposes.

It will thus be seen that the second building of a water-supply from the Platte River has been completed, and that the first one, which was built by a private firm, and was in use for a short time, was a failure. The present supply is obtained from the Platte River, at a point about seven miles above the city, by means of a dam, which is built across the river, and which is about 200 feet long, and about 10 feet high. The water is taken out of the river at the north end of the dam, and is conducted through a ditch, which is about 7 miles long, to the reservoir, which is situated on the highest point of land in the vicinity of the city, and is about 200 feet above the level of the city. The reservoir is a very large one, and is capable of containing a large quantity of water. From the reservoir the water is conducted through pipes to the city, and is distributed to the various parts of the city by means of hydrants, which are placed at convenient distances apart. The water is of very good quality, and is said to be very healthful. The supply is ample for all purposes, and is said to be sufficient to supply a population of 50,000 persons. Albany Bureau No. 369 [illegible] The unpublished [illegible] letter from the action of the State authorities here in the Buffalo seduction case, investigating the action of Governor Cleveland in a requisition case sent to New York some weeks ago.

The documents are extraordinary. Governor Cleveland shows unmistakably either that he was grossly ignorant of the law and his duties under it, or that he was determined to use the power of the Governor of New York to screen a fugitive justice in defiance of law.

It appears that the case started in Buffalo last January, when an information was filed charging the crime of seducing under promise and imprisonment of marriage, and on the indictment had been found and capias issued, on the 1st of June to New York, a requisition was sent by the Governor of New Hampshire for the arrest.

The case was an aggravated one, of the grossest kind, and there are unquestionable evidence and sufficient to justify the issuance of requisition. Governor Cleveland refused to issue the requisition, and has now sent back the papers, with a letter in which he says that he does not believe the evidence of the prosecutrix, and that the indictment was found on the ex parte statement of the girl, and that the Governor has not been satisfied that the alleged fact was the girl's own voluntary act, and that the girl was not induced to go to New York by the defendant. He also says that he has been informed that the girl was not a virtuous woman, and that the defendant had been engaged to a wealthy and respectable young lady of Buffalo, and that the girl was not ignorant of the fact. He also says that the girl was not induced to go to New York by the defendant, but that she went voluntarily with other young people, and that the defendant was not present when the girl left Buffalo. He also says that the defendant has been engaged to a wealthy and respectable young lady of Buffalo, and that the girl was not ignorant of the fact.
